

1.what was the most impressive moment for you,and why?

The most impressive moment was when Teng, the leader of the People's Party, said he voted for Anutin simply because he wanted to dissolve the parliament according to the MOU. Moreover he said he making a decision for the good of all people and the country, not just for himself.

2.What was the most disappointing moment for you,and why?

When Anutin won the election and became the 32nd Prime Minister, I didn't think he was a good choice because he was the one who legalized cannabis, which I believe is harmful to society. However, we have no other choice, and we need to trust that he will do exactly what he promised—to dissolve the parliament so that all the people can have another election.

3. What do you think will happen in Thai politics over the next fewmonths according to the outcome of today's House meeting?

I believe that Anutin must follow through on his promise to dissolve the parliament, as he clearly stated he would. This is important because it will allow the Thai people to have another election in the coming months, giving everyone a fair chance to choose their representatives.
